MR. T. A. TROLLOPE'S NEW NOVEL.

3 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library.

A FAMILY PARTY IN THE PIAZZA of ST. PETER. By T. A. TROLLOPE.

"It is fair to say that they are full of various interest, and that the three volumes contain more pages worth reading than, as a rule, do thirty volumes of the ordinary novel of commerce. Almost every taste will find something to suit its wants, and we cannot leave the book without thanking the author for the amusement which he has given us."—Saturday Review.

3 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library.

JULIET'S GUARDIAN. By Mrs. H. LOVETT CAMERON.

"A really good novel. Mrs. Cameron is far too good an artist to rest content with anything but the very best work. One of the purest, brightest, briskest, cleverest, and most original stories that we have come across for many a long day."—Watchdog Review.
"The reading public may be warmly congratulated upon the advent above the literary horizon of a new and exceptionally brilliant planet. Charming fresh. We advise everyone to read and judge for themselves."—Morning Post.

2 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library.

The NEW REPUBLIC; or, Culture,
Faith, and Philosophy in an English Country House.

"In the progress of the discourse, the accuracy of parody is simply astonishing. There is probably not one educated reader in a hundred who, on reading most of Mr. Herbert's speeches, will not rack his brains to remember in which of certain well-known and now not easily procurable volumes they occur. The sermon which practically closes the book might very well have found a home between the drab covers which issue monthly from a certain Kentish village; and a speech of Mr. Rose's, at Vol. II., p. 179, really sets one wondering whether one's own copy of some stanzas, on strongly ribbed paper, which appeared four years ago, is imperfect or not. The book is so clever a book, despite its faults, that it deserves criticism of the admulatory rather than the obituary kind. We should have to go far before we found such a brilliant putting into words of the famous Butlerian maxim as this: 'Conscience in most souls is like an English sovereign; it reigns, but it does not govern.' &c., &c. We have too often in England been given to succoring at epigrams because, as a rule, we cannot write them. Here is a man who can write them, and we hope that he will write more."—Athenaeum.

3 vols. crown 8vo, at every Library.

JOHN LEXLEY'S TROUBLES. By C. W. BARDSEY, M.A.

"To say that there is not a dull line in this novel would be such weak praise for an exceptionally fine work of modern fiction, that it seems almost an insult to the author to make the remark; but still it would be perfectly true. Mr. Bardsey seems to have a happy facility for uniting into one harmonious whole all the qualities which should go to the making of a thoroughly good story. The plot is developed in a manner which might excite the envy of the most practised master of the art."—Morning Post.

Crown 8vo, cloth extra, with Photographic Portrait, 6s.

TOM HOOD'S POEMS: Humorous and Pathetic. Edited, with a Memoir, by his Sister, FRANCES FREE-LING BRODERIP.

"There is a true comic vein in his comic poems, true pathos in the pathetic, whilst in some of his poems the pathetic and the comic are blended together in the very manner which his father had made his own."—Standard.
"A very satisfactory contribution to light literature."—Sunday Times.

DYCE'S SHAKESPEARE.—In 9 vols. 8vo, cloth extra, 4l. 10s.

THE WORKS OF SHAKESPEARE.
Edited by the Rev. ALEXANDER DYCE. A New Edition, being the THIRD, with Mr. Dyce's Final Corrections.

"The best text of Shakespeare which has yet appeared. Mr. Dyce's edition is a great work, worthy of his reputation, and for the present it contains the standard text."—Times.

"A thoughtfully written, artistic, and really enjoyable novel, marking a distinct advance on the author's previous efforts..... It contains some carefully wrought and really effective sketches of Scottish scenery and character, and fully confirms the author's right to a high place in the numerous band of our lady novelists."—Scotsman.
"There is a good deal of what is simple and natural about the characters, and, without making them too nearly perfect, the author has kept quite clear of the crimes and sentimental vices by which we were formerly simply disgusted, but are now bored."—Athenaeum.
"Decidedly superior to anything we have yet had from the author..... The advance she has already made gives the best ground for auguring well of her performances for the future."—Graphic.

"Besides the heroine there is another 'woman that shall be praised,' viz. the authoress. Praised for writing in English, for some passages of poetry, for some even of slang, for her boldness and tenderness of expression, and, above all, for writing a religious novel without shocking us with pious utterances."—Public Opinion.
"Well written; and the household of the thrifless doctor is described with humour and a considerable insight into character."—Daily News.

THE ATTIC ORATORS,

FROM ANTIPHON TO ISAEOS.

By R. C. JEBB, M.A.

Professor of Greek in the University of Glasgow.

"Professor Jebb has given to the English public in a small compass a very great deal of what is most valuable in the labours of a whole generation of German critics, purged from the pedantry which too often encumbers them, augmented by critical observations of his own, and illuminated by an accomplished taste and judgment. Such a work will be indispensable to the classical student, and acceptable to the general reader."—Times.

"Of Professor Jebb's mastery of the Greek language it is superfluous to speak—in that he is well known to have few living English rivals—but he possesses also in a high degree a quality which does not always go with profound scholarship—a fine literary taste, and a faculty which does not always accompany taste—that of lucid exposition and compact and logical arrangement. Hence the attentive reader of these two volumes rises from their perusal, not only instructed by Professor Jebb's detailed criticisms of the writers whom he discusses, but in full possession of his historical idea.....We are able to follow in his pages, and with a full comprehension of the cause and manner of each step in the process, the majestic development of the most perfect organ of human thought that the world has ever seen; from the stately but somewhat inflexible prose of Antiphon till Attic oratory reached its zenith of power, grace, and splendour in Demosthenes."

PALL MALL GAZETTE.

"A most competent scholar to write the history of great oratory.....He has apparently not overlooked any material criticism advanced by other writers, and it is impossible not to be impressed with a sense of the valuable service he has rendered in the field of classical literature which he has selected for illustration, and of the access of light, knowledge, and familiarity with the ancient models of oratory for which his readers are indebted to this lucid and well-arranged survey."—SATURDAY REVIEW.

"A work which is full of interest from the first page to the last, and which exhibits throughout a width and refinement of erudition worthy of the best traditions of English scholarship."

BRITISH QUARTERLY REVIEW.

"Apart from the antiquarian and philological interest of the subject, Professor Jebb has treated it in such a catholic spirit, with so much brilliance and tact, that he has succeeded in producing a standard work on universal prose literature which should be attentively perused by modern students of rhetoric."

DIANA, LADY LYLE. By W. Hepworth

DIXON. Second Edition. 3 vols.

"Mr. Dixon's novel has decided merits. Not a few of his conceptions are fresh and original; many of his scenes are highly dramatic; many of his descriptions show a keen faculty of artistic observation, and impress you with a lively sense of their fidelity."—Times.

"Mr. Dixon's powers are in many ways such as to lead the world to expect a good novel from him, and his readers will not be satisfied with what is less than excellent. They feel that they have a right to look for a story well put together, and a rapid succession of exciting incidents, and in these expectations they will not be disappointed. Mr. Dixon's book is undoubtedly original. The reader's attention is at once arrested, and his interest kept alive throughout."—Athenæum.

"Diana, Lady Lyle," is a most interesting novel. The heroine herself is charmingly, and naturally drawn. The descriptions are fresh, vigorous, and picturesque. The interest not only never flags, but grows in intensity to the end. Altogether, Mr. Dixon's first novel is a success."—World.

GUIZOT'S HISTORY OF ENGLAND.

To be complete in 3 vols. uniform with Guizot's "History of France." Contains all the Original French Illustrations.

From the TIMES of March 27, 1877.

"This is a popular History of England, related by M. Guizot to his grandchildren, much after the manner in which Sir Walter Scott composed his 'Tales of a Grandfather.' The great French statesman, philosopher, and historian had already thus treated the History of France. . . . As the father related these 'lessons,' the daughter took notes, which were afterwards submitted to his judgment. He desired that she should publish them, and, accordingly, they have appeared in print—first in French, and then in English, the translation being by the hand of Mr. Moly Thomas. Let us add, that for luxury of typography, plainness of print, and beauty of illustration, these volumes, of which but one has as yet appeared in English, will hold their own against any production of an age so luxurious as our own in everything, typography not excepted."

A FOURTH EDITION is ready of

THE CRUISE OF H.M.S. "CHALLENGER."

By W. J. J. SPRY, R.N.

1 vol. demy 8vo, cloth extra, with a fine Route Map and many Illustrations, price 18s.

From the ACADEMY.

"Will be welcomed and read with great interest. . . . Gives a capital idea of the cruise. . . . Capitally written."

From the TIMES of March 31, 1877.

(Review of Spry's "Cruise" and Lord G. Campbell's "Log Letters.")

"Mr. Spry's work is rather graver in tone, and devotes more space to the ostensible objects of the expedition, but it also is full of pleasant little bits by the way. It contains illustrations, too, of strange and fearful-looking objects, whom we must perforce regard as men and brethren dwelling in distant lands. . . . Many careful representations are given of the ingenious machinery and contrivances for sweeping the bottom of the ocean, and a couple of drawings make us familiar with the aspect of the chemical laboratory and the naturalists' work-room on board the Challenger. . . . Altogether it is difficult to imagine a more delightful cruise, apart from its main object of hourly interest, carried on in spite of wind and weather, of icy gales, or burning stretches of tropic seas. . . . If the result of the scientific observations, duly recorded in each of these pleasant volumes, has been less dwelt upon by us than the general interest of the cruise, it is not that the subject itself is in the least slurred over by either author. . . . That this instruction is most pleasantly as well as plainly imparted will be evident from even a glance at either of these agreeable volumes. But they deserve a careful perusal; and there is no fear that when once opened they will be laid aside until the cruise is over and ended, and the anchor dropped off Spithead."

THE DISCOVERIES OF PRINCE HENRY THE NAVIGATOR, AND THEIR RESULTS.

BEING THE NARRATIVE OF THE DISCOVERY BY SEA, WITHIN ONE CENTURY, OF MORE THAN HALF THE WORLD.

By RICHARD HENRY MAJOR, F.S.A.

Demy 8vo, with several Woodcuts, 4 Maps, and a Photographic Reproduction of the Portrait of Prince Henry, cloth extra, 15s.

From the SATURDAY REVIEW.

"The painstaking and accurate author of this work has put before himself a very distinct issue. He is not exactly engaged in a process of rehabilitation. He is determined, if possible, to show that the splendid maritime achievements to which we owe the discovery of America and Australia, the sea route to India, China, and the Moluccas, and the circumnavigation of the globe, all compressed into a century, were in reality due to the imagination and perseverance of a single man. . . . We admit that the author has made out a very good case, and we may say of his work, as a literary production, that it tells us a great deal in a moderate compass. . . . The author is never grandiloquent, never loses sight of his premises and proofs, and never writes for effect; and now and then, in his descriptions of strange customs and gesticulating and naked combatants, there is a freshness, and a simplicity which take us back to Herodotus and Defoe."

From the ATHENAEUM.

"Mr. Major deserves the thanks of the reading public for having reproduced, in a popular form, his learned work on Prince Henry the Navigator and his age. The subject of his inquiries cannot fail to interest a wide circle of readers, for the events to which they refer have permanently influenced the destinies of nations, nay, of all mankind. . . . Mr. Major's book deserves to be read extensively, for it relates, in an attractive manner, the achievements of a great man and of a great age. Its value is enhanced by maps and illustrations, amongst which a beautiful chromo-portrait of Prince Henry occupies a conspicuous place."

A SECOND EDITION is ready of

A DAY OF MY LIFE AT ETON.

By AN ETON BOY.

Small post 8vo, limp cloth, price 2s. 6d.

From the LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

"It is that very rare thing, a work of natural, brilliant, and yet perfectly innocent humour."

From the SPECTATOR.

"We are assured on good authority that this amusing little volume is the genuine production of an Eton boy. We do not doubt it in the least, but we feel pretty sure that he is not the idle young rascal that he describes himself as being. . . . We recommend to our readers, young and old, this most entertaining little book."

From the DAILY NEWS, March 31.

"Books which are really new in form and original in spirit are so rare, that it would be a great pity if the slender proportions of the Eton boy's every-day's experiences should cause the merits of the little volume to be in any degree overlooked."

. . . . The very originality of this delightful book is perhaps in itself a stronger ground of doubt, for clever youth is mostly imitative. . . . The little world of Eton is here seen as it may be supposed to be reflected in the school-boy's mind, and the picture bears the impress of truth on every page. There is no vulgarity in the slight infusion of school slang, for a certain degree of refinement is always predominant, and the whole is thoroughly natural and unaffected. The reader who cannot sympathise with the account of that fine old family watch and all the satirical observations to which it gave rise, can hardly have been at any time a school-boy; and what truth and quiet fun lurks in the boy's description of the visit from the two 'new fellows' whom his friends have asked him to 'look after,' and who, in consequence, are invited to breakfast! It may safely be predicted that 'Palley' and 'Jenson' will be associated with Eton school life as long as the names of the most illustrious of her scholars."
